

HOW TO CHOOSE A FARM HORSE.

The farmer requires a horse that can take him to market and around his farm, on which he can occasionally ride for pleasure, and which he must sometimes use for the plow and harrow.

First to notice is the eye, which should be well examined. Clearness of the eye is a sure indication of goodness; but this is not all—the eyelids, eyebrows, and all other appendages must be considered—for many horses, whose eyes appear clear and brilliant, go blind at an early age; therefore be careful to observe whether the part between the eyelids and eyebrows are swollen, for this indicates that the eye will not last.

When the eyes are remarkably flat, sunk within their orbits, it is a bad sign. The iris or circle that surrounds the sight of the eye, should be distinct, and of a pale, variegated cinnamon color, for this is a sure sign of a good eye. The eyes of a horse are never too large.

The head should be of good size, broad between the eyes, large nostrils, red with in, for large nostrils betoken good wind.

The feet and legs should be regarded, for a horse with bad feet is like a house with a weak foundation, and will do little service. The feet should be of a middle size and smooth; the heels should be firm, and not spongy and rotten.

The limbs should be free from blemishes of all kinds, the knees straight, the back strong and well braced, the pastern joints should be clean and clear of swellings of all kinds, and come near the ground, for such never have the ringbone. Fleecy legged horses are generally subject to the grease, and other infirmities of that kind, and therefore should not be chosen.

The body should be of good size, the back straight or nearly so, and have only a small sinking below the withers; the barrel round, and the ribs coming close to the hip joints. Shoulders should run back but not too heavy, for a horse with heavy shoulders seldom moves well; chest and arms large.

A horse weighing from 1,300 to 1,400 is large enough for a cart horse; from 1,100 to 1,200 is large enough for a farmer's horse; from 1,000 to 1,100 is heavy enough for a carriage horse.

I should advise every one to get some experimental knowledge of a horse before purchasing.—JOHN BRANSON, in Ohio Cultivator.

RICH WITHOUT MONEY.—Many a man is rich without money. Thousands of men with nothing in the pocket, and thousands without even a pocket, are rich. A man born with a good heart and good limbs, and a pretty good head-piece, is rich. Good bones are better than gold—tough muscles, than silver; and nerves that flash fire and carry energy to every function, are better than hours and land.

It is better than a landed estate to have the right kind of father and mother. Good breeds and bad breeds exist among men as really as among herds and horses. Education may do much to check evil tendencies, or to develop good ones; but it is a great thing to inherit the right proportion of faculties to start with.

That man is rich who has a good disposition—who is naturally kind, patient, cheerful, hopeful, and who has a flavor of wit and fun in his composition. The hardest thing to get along with in this life is a man's own self. A cross, selfish fellow, desponding and complaining fellow—a timid care-burdened man—these are all men deformed on the inside. Their feet may not limp, but their thoughts do.

A STRONG ARGUMENT AGAINST STRONG BUTTER.—"Why is it, my son, that when you drop your bread and butter, it is always the butter side down?" "I don't know. It hadn't order, had it?" The strongest side ought to be up, and this is the strongest butter I ever seed." "Hush up; it's some of your aunt's churning." "Did she churn it?" The great lazy thing!" "What! your aunt?" "No, this here butter. To make that poor old woman churn it, when it is strong enough to churn itself." "Hush, Zeb, I've ate a great deal worse in the most aristocratic houses." "Well, people of rank ought to eat it." "Why people of rank?" "Cause it's rank butter." "You varmint, you! what makes you talk so smart?" "Cause the butter has taken the skin off my tongue, mother." "Zeb, don't lie! I can't throw away the butter." "I'll tell you, ma, what I'd do with it. Keep it to draw blisters. You ought to see the flies keel over as soon as they touch it." "Zeb, don't exaggerate; but here's a quarter; go to the store and buy a pound of fresh."

Among many anecdotes of Buena Vista, this one beats all others. An Arkansas soldier, wounded, asked an Irishman to help him off the field. The latter did so, by enabling him to mount, strapping him to his horse, and riding himself before. During the ride the poor Arkansas had his head shot off unknown to his companion. Arriving at the doctor's quarters, the Irishman was asked what he wanted. "I brought this man to have his leg dressed." "Why," replied the doctor, "his head is off!" "The bloody liar!" exclaimed Mike, looking behind him, "he told me he was only shot in the leg!"

TO SAVE CARBAGES.—Tie two together by the heels, and hang them over a low pole in the cellar, so that the heads will just clear the ground; tuck loose straw around them, and sprinkle twice during the winter with brine. That's the way I keep mine, and always have them as fresh and crisp in April, as when first taken from the ground.—Mrs. E. D. Kendall, in the Country Gentleman and Cultivator.

Every man complains of his memory, but no man complains of his judgment.

THE COLLEGIATE COURSE
Embraces Double and Single Entry Book-keeping, Commercial Computations, Commercial Law, Penmanship, Business Correspondence, Partnership Settlements, etc., etc.

The Department of Book keeping and Accounts, is organized and conducted on the Counting Room System; the Halls being fitted up with appropriate desks, etc., and the student is introduced at once to the practical routine of counting rooms generally.

PRACTICAL TEXT BOOKS.
Although the instructions in the department of Book-keeping must, from the nature of the study be given from written manuscript forms, with elaborate oral and black-board elucidations, and lectures, yet great benefit may be derived from the use of reliable books of reference, while in the important department of Commercial Law they are indispensable. To meet this necessity, the following Text Books have been prepared:

BRYANT & STRATTON'S COMMERCIAL LAW, for Mercantile Colleges and Academies, Business Men and the Profession, by ALBION DRAKE, LL. D., Prof. of Law in the University of Albany; published by D. Appleton & Co., 443 and 445 Broadway, New York.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S COMMERCIAL CALCULATIONS, for Accountants, Business Men and Academies.

BRYANT & STRATTON'S BOOK-KEEPING, in three editions: 1st, Primary edition, for Common Schools, 192 pages; 2d, High School Edition, for High Schools and Academies, 208 pages; 3d, Counting House edition, for Accountants and Business Men, 350 pages (in press).

SPENCERIAN SYSTEM OF PENMANSHIP, in a series of nine books, by P. R. SPENCER; published by Ivison, Phinney & Co., 48 and 50 Walker Street, New York.
